

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A liquid crystal display device includes a display part divided into blocks, a gate driver which sequentially drives scan lines arranged in the display part one by one, and a data driver which
5 supplies, via common signal lines, display signals to pixels connected to one of the scan lines driven by the gate driver and located in one of the blocks which are sequentially selected in accordance with a 10 block control signal.